New Hampshire Health Officers Spring Conference ~ Continued

1:00 - 2:00 PM | Tick Testing and Community Health: A Collaborative Approach to Understand our Outdoors

Tickborne Diseases are an emerging and widespread cause of human illness in New Hampshire. In this session, we will explore a new NH DHHS-led project that utilizes tick dragging (a method of tick surveillance) to identify areas in New Hampshire where tick-human encounters are likely and where tick-borne diseases are present. Join us to learn about the project and how NH municipalities can participate.

Marco Notarangelo, Vectorborne Disease Surveillance Coordinator

Tiffany Meekins, State's Vector-Borne Disease Biologist

2:00 - 3:00 PM | Health Officer Case Study Review

Learn from your peers' experiences with a review of situations health officers have found themselves in. During this discussion we will break up into small groups and discuss septic failures, hoarding cases, and more. These case studies will showcase how health officers utilized local and state codes as well as their authority to respond to public health concerns.

Sophia Johnson & Joanne Cotton, DHHS
